Course Objectives

This seminar study concentrates on Dark Age Britain, from the arrival of the Anglo-Saxon invaders in the fifth century A.D. through the conversion of the Anglo-Saxons to Christianity during the seventh and eighth centuries. The field of study is a mystery wrapped in an enigma. Ignorance and obscurity offer one advantage to students: the written sources for this period are so few that they may be sampled in a single semester. The course is designed to present typical kinds of early medieval evidence (Saints’ Lives, Chronicles, Annals, Charters, Poetry, Genealogy, Archaeology), introduce you to their potentials and difficulties, and then set a series of problems that require you to apply the materials to gain an answer. Attendance is required. Some class periods will be used to conduct history “labs” designed to improve your use of evidence. In these meetings you will work in small teams. The same teams will function as small study groups and meet informally outside of class at least once a week. You will thus have a responsibility to others as well as yourself in preparing the assigned readings and questions.
Course Grades

Short Quizzes and Class Participation 30%
Papers 60%
Instructor’s Discretion 10%

Attendance

Attendance is required. You have two unexcused absences without a penalty. A third unexcused absence reduces the course grade to a “C.” A fourth unexcused absence results in failure for the course.

Papers

1. Was Hengest a fictional or a historical character?
2. What really happened at Whitby?
